CoolSculpting vs CryoSlimming: Which Fat Freezer is Best?

August 25, 2023

Do you dream about having a slimmer waistline or toning your underarms or thighs? If diet and exercise are not enough, fat reduction methods like Cryoskin and CoolSculpting are two popular cosmetic treatments to consider. Both treatments reduce diet and exercise-resistant fat and improve overall figure without invasive surgery or recovery time.

CoolSculpting is a popular treatment that uses cryolipolysis to freeze and kill fat cells without surgery. Cryoskin, also known as CryoSlimming, is an alternative non-invasive treatment that uses heat and cold therapy to injure and eliminate stubborn fat cells. Both body shaping methods help eliminate body bulges and sculpt your appearance without strenuous gym workouts or worrying about surgery, complications, and downtime.

If you are curious whether CryoSlimming or CoolSculpting is more effective at toning the physique and freezing stubborn fat, keep reading for a full rundown of both fat-freezing treatments to discover which is best.

Understanding CoolSculpting

CoolSculpting is a popular, FDA-cleared fat reduction treatment. CoolSculpting sessions take about 45 minutes. It uses a fat-freezing technology called cryolipolysis to freeze and destroy exercise-resistant fat cells. The ideal CoolSculpting candidate is a healthy, active adult struggling with diet and exercise-resistant fat. The ideal CoolSculpting candidate will have at least an inch of "pinchable" subcutaneous fat, not just skin.

A specialized applicator device cools the target area and freezes the fat cells. You may experience pinching or pulling sensations during this part of treatment. Once your fat cells are frozen, they die, and the body naturally eliminates them over time via your lymphatic system. As a result, this method permanently destroys stubborn fat cells.

After treatment, the area is massaged to break up frozen tissue and start healing. The massage may feel uncomfortable but is manageable overall. A series of three treatments is recommended. You may experience slight redness, numbness, or swelling following your session. These symptoms disappear on their own. There is no downtime with CoolSculpting, and you can resume your daily activities following your session.

What Are The Benefits of CoolSculpting?

CoolSculpting is a safe and effective method to tone your physique and improve your self-esteem by freezing stubborn fat cells. Additional CoolSculpting benefits include:

- Long-lasting fat reduction
- A more slimmed and defined appearance
- Destroys fat cells permanently
- Non-invasive
- Quick and easy treatment
- Used on multiple areas of the body including lower stomach, love handles and thighs
- No downtime or recovery time
- Safe, FDA-cleared procedure
- Natural-looking results
- Minimal discomfort
- No surgery, incisions, or anesthesia

Understanding CryoSlimming

CryoSlimming is another way to destroy unwanted fat and firm the skin. A Cryoskin session lasts around 30 minutes. During your CryoSlimming treatment, a special wand emits controlled temperatures to specific areas of your body. The treatment starts with a heated massage to loosen up your fat cells.

Next, the temperature decreases to freezing temperatures that injure and kill fat cells. You may feel a tingling or pins-and-needles sensation during the procedure. By utilizing hot and cold therapy, your fat cells freeze, break down and are destroyed. In addition to eliminating unwanted fat cells, Cryoskin also increases collagen production.

After your CryoSlimming treatment, you may experience redness or inflammation. A series of 6 treatments is recommended for best results.

What Are The Benefits of CryoSlimming?

Cryoskin Slimming is a popular body sculpting treatment that reduces body fat, appearance of cellulite and improves your overall figure. Additional benefits include:

- A more slimmed and toned appearance
- Tightens skin
- 30-minute sessions
- Non-invasive
- Treat different areas of the body including the face, stomach, and legs
- No surgery, incisions, or anesthesia
- No downtime or recovery time

CoolSculpting vs CryoSlimming Body Sculpting Results

CoolSculpting and CryoSlimming results vary. Both are non-surgical options for individuals looking to shape their physique and destroy stubborn fat permanently. Additionally, both treatments provide long-lasting results. However, based on cost, convenience, and overall results, CoolSculpting is a more promising treatment.

On average, CoolSculpting clinical studies show up to 25% fat reduction in targeted areas after a treatment session.¹ Initial results are noticeable as soon as three weeks following the initial CoolSculpting session. Final results can take up to 3 months however, this depends on the area treated and how quickly your body metabolizes fat.

With CryoSlimming, this treatment delivers an average fat reduction of 38% but individuals must complete a series of 5 treatments in order to see results. Optimal results will be visible about 3 months following your last CryoSlimming session.* Like any aesthetic treatment, results will vary.

Both CoolSculpting and CryoSlimming provide long-term fat reduction. However, the duration of these results depends on factors like age, genetics, lifestyle, and weight gain. Ultimately, CoolSculpting is a better option based on the fact that fat reduction is achieved with one treatment session, compared to CryoSlimming, which takes 5 treatments to see results.

Having realistic goals about what a fat reduction procedure can achieve is crucial. CoolSculpting and CryoSlimming are spot reduction treatments. A healthy diet and exercise regimen are additionally recommended to prolong your results.

See safe, effective fat-reduction results possible with CoolSculpting in these CoolSculpting before and after pictures.

CoolSculpting vs CryoSlimming For Fat Freezing

CoolSculpting and CryoSlimming are similar methods used for fat reduction and body sculpting. However, certain factors make CoolSculpting a better option to consider.

For one thing, CoolSculpting is FDA-cleared while Cryoskin is not. There have been over 4 million CoolSculpting procedures performed worldwide, and countless clinical trials and testing conducted to establish the treatment's safety and efficacy. Therefore, CoolSculpting is a safer option. With Cryoskin, more research needs to be conducted to understand this treatment's safety and potential side effects.

Another benefit of CoolSculpting is that fewer treatment sessions are needed to achieve desired results. On average, CoolSculpting results develop over the course of three weeks to three months. A series of one to three CoolSculpting treatments are recommended compared to CryoSlimming, where 5-6 treatments are recommended for best results. Therefore, CoolSculpting is a more effective and convenient treatment option.

Additionally, unlike Cryoskin, CoolSculpting can also treat multiple, large areas of the body simultaneously in a single treatment session. "DualSculpting" involves utilizing two machines at the same time. Dual applicators are placed on multiple targeted areas and deliver precise cooling to reduce fat cells at once, saving time.

Side Effects of CoolSculpting vs. CryoSlimming

While both CoolSculpting and CryoSlimming methods benefit, knowing the potential side effects is essential before considering either option.

Let's start with CoolSculpting. Some common side effects of CoolSculpting include temporary redness, swelling, or numbness in the treated area. These side effects usually subside on their own. Moving on to CryoSlimming, side effects may include redness, bruising, and temporary numbness in the treated area.

It is important to remember that everyone's experience with these treatments varies, and other side effects may not be mentioned here.
