COLDSCULPT | FREEZES AWAY STUBBORN FAT BULGES WITH COOLSCULPTING

ColdSculpt, more widely known as CoolSculpting, reduces fat bulges in stubborn problem areas like the lower abdomen and inner thighs. This treatment freezes the fat cells to death through the Cryolipolysis process. The procedure is safe and effective, making it an excellent alternative to other invasive fat reduction surgeries. The results of this procedure are all natural-looking and long-lasting.

THE SCIENCE OF COOLSCULPTING STUBBORN FAT BULGES

CoolSculpting is the popular fat freezing treatment that reduces fat cells using Cryolipolysis. When you break down the word, Cryolipolysis means cold-induced + fat cell = death and removal. The treatments are possible because fat cells cannot withstand freezing temperatures like our skin cells.

THE COLDSCULPT PROCESS

During treatments, your technician uses a Cold Sculpt machine. The machine uses applicators made to target sections of the body. There are smaller applicators that can apply to the chin or arm area and large applicators that apply to the abdomen or back.

The ColdSculpt applicators target the area you select and administer the cooling technology. This process targets fat cells below the skin. When the fat cells freeze, their membrane will rupture and die. Once they die, the fat cells can no longer do their job of storing fat—and process out of the body. After it exits the body, the cells will not grow back.
