What Is HD Liposuction?

High Definition Liposuction is a class 1 dermatological surgery that enhances the body's contour by removing excess fat. This vibration technology separates fat cells that reside between the skin and the muscle. HD Liposuction is vibration-assisted which decreases pain, maintains tissue integrity by not damaging supporting structures, and assists in superior re-adherence of skin. There is also no heat damage to skin and tissue which can be problematic with other types of liposuction. The vibration also helps ease the penetration through fibrous tissue and post-surgical scars and aids in repeat liposuction procedures (tissue can become denser from a prior procedure).

HD Liposuction not only removes unwanted fat but also allows for shaping and contouring. HD Liposuction is performed using local anesthesia and oral medications eliminating the risks involved with the use of general anesthesia. The procedure is done in the office and you are able to return to daily activities the next day, and full activity usually after two weeks. Most people are able to return to a desk job the next day!

ABDOMEN

One of the most common areas for liposuction, the abdomen requires rigorous care and attention to detail. In order to provide natural contours and smooth lines, we use a gentle and highly conservative approach to eliminate fat in the abdomen. We also focus on the abdomen as it compares to the rest of the body. By doing this, our technique is geared towards an overall proportionate appearance. If you're looking to reduce your waistline and diet and exercise have not done the trick, abdomen liposuction may be the key to the figure you desire.

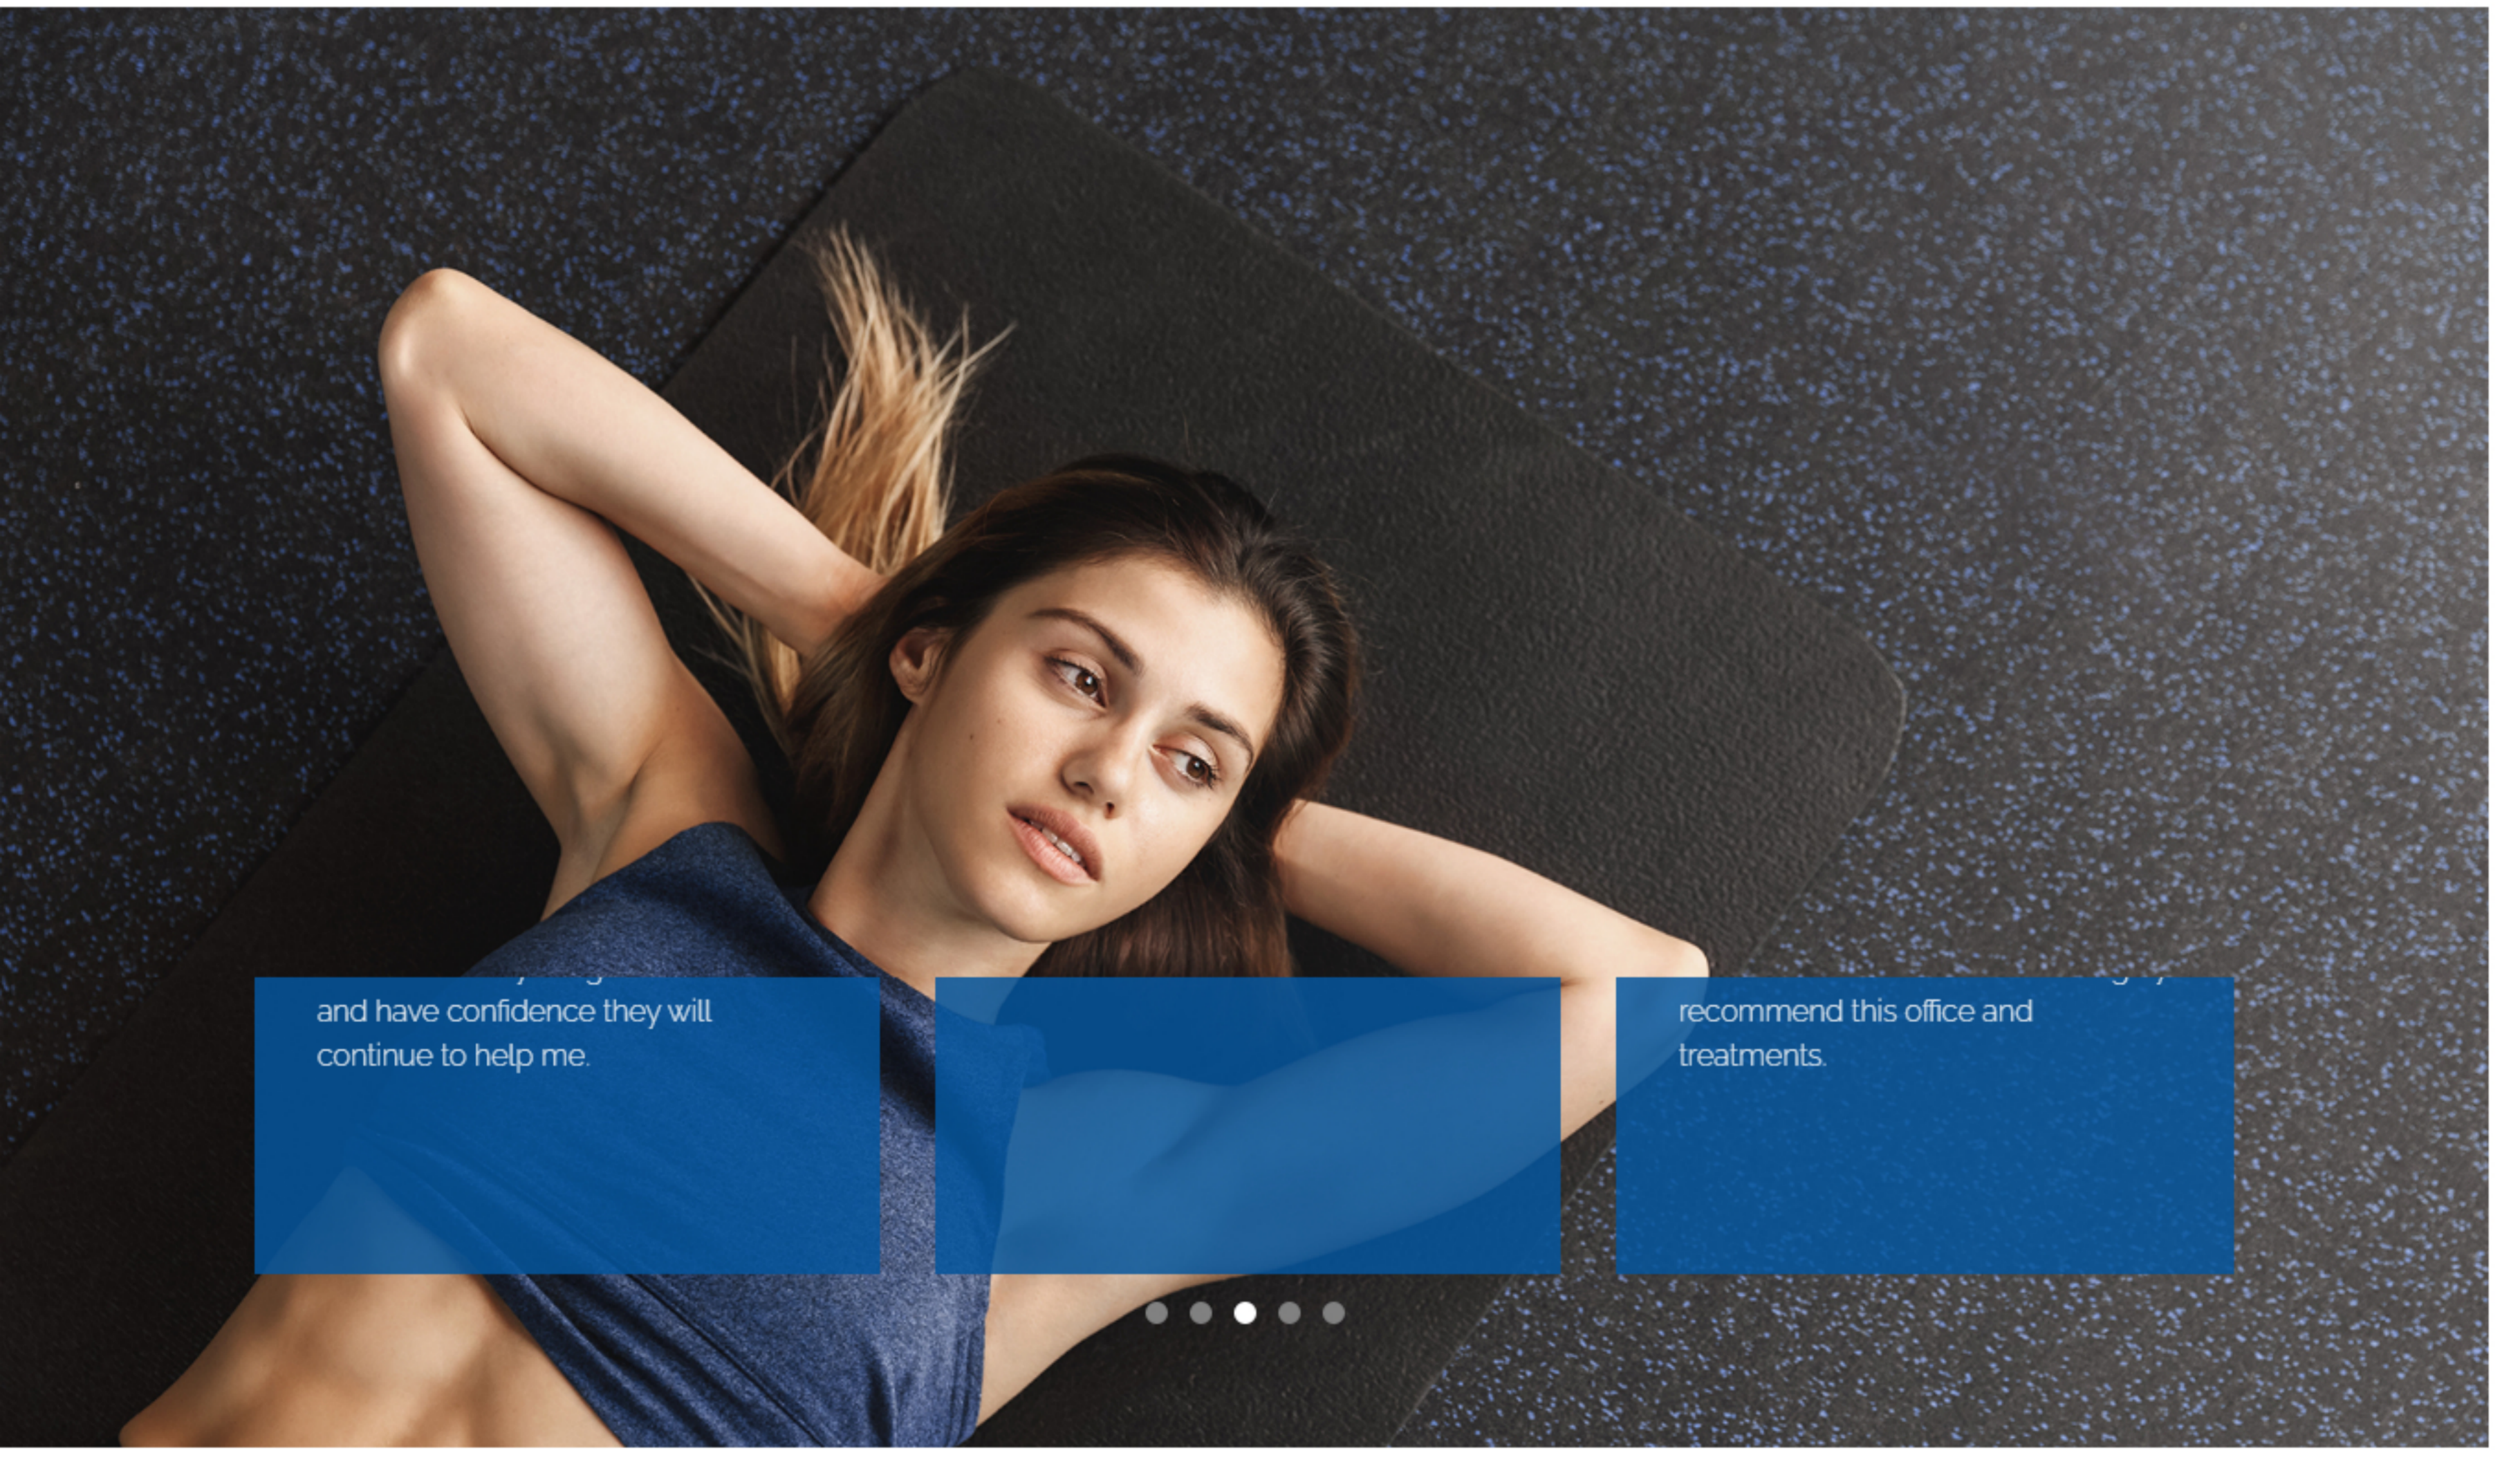

BACK

For patients looking to reduce fat that has accumulated in their upper or lower back, they will be pleased to know that the back is one of the best areas for liposuction. When liposuction is performed on the back, patients don't have to be concerned about excess skin or damage to surrounding tissues because backs receive the best retraction. In fact, some of the most dramatic results from liposuction can be seen when it is applied to the back. With this dynamic and integrative approach to back liposuction, we can help your back achieve the smooth and proportionate appearance you're trying to achieve.
