What Is Carpal Tunnel Syndrome?

Your wrist is made up of a group of small bones known as carpals, which support a tube that runs through your wrist called the carpal tunnel. Carpal tunnel syndrome is a nerve disorder characterized by pain and weakness in your fingers, hands, and wrists. This disorder develops from problems in a nerve in the wrist, though the exact progression is not entirely understood.

Repetitive activities like typing, racquet sports, or sewing can cause pain, numbness, and tingling in the wrist area. Carpal tunnel syndrome is a condition when the nerves in the area are not able to send messages accurately.

This syndrome has often been considered a workplace disorder, brought on by repetitive typing and poor workstation setup. Recent research suggests that it is mostly associated with medical or physical conditions, such as:

- ▶ Diabetes
- ▶ Hypothyroidism
- ▶ Osteoarthritis
- ▶ Rheumatoid Arthritis

Wrist Pain Treatment

If you experience chronic or acute wrist or hand pain due to carpal tunnel syndrome, you may get relief from non-surgical natural medicine, an alternative solution for the repair and regeneration of damaged joint tissues. A growing number of people in the St. Petersburg area are turning to natural medicine to treat an expanding list of musculoskeletal conditions.

PLASMA TREATMENT

Plasma is a highly concentrated serum of healing platelets, found in your blood naturally. During a simple procedure, a small amount of your blood is drawn and placed into a special machine, which medically processes the sample to separate and concentrate your blood platelets.

Once our medical staff injects the plasma into the area of your hand or wrist where the pain persists, the platelets get to work. These cells have a natural ability to heal and restore for effective pain relief. Platelets are regularly a part of your body's healing mechanism, so a high dose of them will help your body heal itself faster.

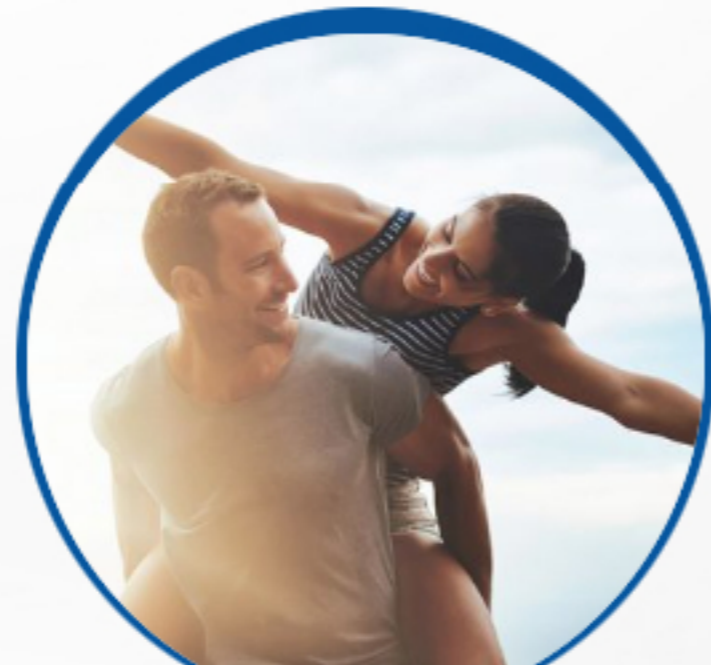

Wrist pain is a common condition because of the activities and repetitive motions we all engage in every day, but surgery isn't your only option for relief. At our St. Petersburg, FL pain management clinic, we work closely with you to achieve pain relief. We recognize that your symptoms are unique and work with you to create a comprehensive carpal tunnel treatment plan designed to tackle the root cause of your pain.
